Bjorn van ’t Zandeind is a well built bull with good muscularity, and just like his half brother Bassie has fine legs. The combination of the Clarisse line with Bruno has created a wonderful bull for breeding.

Bruno has an amazing reputation in the beef on dairy breeding circuit. He is the bull with the shortest gestation length and his calves belong among the lightest in weight at calving. Calves by Bruno also grow well.

The Clarisse family is another acclaimed pedigree that includes famous names like Remco and Marco, who were recently joined by Jordy van ’t Zandeind. Short gestation lengths and good growth are guaranteed when adding the name Clarisse to the breeding mix and this bull brings the added bonus of Bruno van de Plashoeve, who gives the shortest gestation length and light weight calves at birth. Bjorn's own gestation length was marginally longer than could be anticipated based on his pedigree, but he should pass on short gestation lengths in the same way as Bassie. This means that Bjorn is also rated five out of five stars for calving ease and can be used with confidence.
