Nye is a well developed Normande bull. As a young bull, he already exhibited plenty of diary strength for this breed. He has a quiet temperament and a beautiful coat with more red markings than average.

Nye's dam is a very good example of the Normande breed, with strong legs and good production combined with sufficient muscularity. She is a daughter by Arnica, a bull with very good proven abilities in the breed who gives daughters with above average production and good muscularity.

Nye's sire Jubilant is a young bull, who is improving his scores at each index run. A pleasing production index and passes on positive components. Also scores well for udder and legs.
Nye also has interesting A2A2 and BB casein variants.
