Following in the wake of ARB-BonJovi, Orana Oscar is a new Aussie Red bull, who combines Australian cow families with an infusion of Scandinavian bulls. Orana Oscar's coat colouring is almost completely red, and he is expected to perform well on health traits and conformation traits. In Australia, Oscar is offered as a bull to use specifically in crossing programmes aiming at better results.

His sire, V Foske, is considered to be one of the top proven Aussie Red bulls in Australia and has produced an amazing number of highly merited cows. In 2017, 11 of his daughters featured in the top 18 of Australia!

A characteristic of the Aussie Red breed is their high fertility. This breed is also very self-sufficient with little need of veterinary care, and they produce milk well in pasture grazing systems. Cows with functional workability that easily produce milk on a less luxurious diet.

The breeders behind this bull achieved a 75% success rate of pregnant cows within six weeks in 2016. They have been selecting Aussie Reds for almost 30 years and are still booking success with their herd. Orana Oscar also offers the A2A2 variant in his milk and is most likely to produce light-weight calves.
