The bull Stillmore Pardner Modesto is the first Ayrshire bull available in the Netherlands. The Ayrshire breed originates of Scotland and can be traced back till the 1800's. As of the beginning of 1800 Scottish and English immigrants took their own Ayrshire cows with them to Canada and USA.

The Ayrshire breed shows some specific characteristics which are highly demanded at the moment: easy calvings, free of genetic defects and healthy cows with superb udders.

Modesto himself descends from one of the best cow families of the US. Grand dam Valevue BBK Minerva EX94, champion of the 2006 World Dairy Expo, is also the production champion of the Ayrshire breed. Modesto's dam Stillmore Tuxedo Model VG 89 not only gives a lot of milk, she also shows a very good conformation. Modesto will improve the udders massively, mainly the fore udders of Ayrshire's are famous. Feet & legs are fine, hard and strong. His daughters will show milk type with enough vitality.

Modesto is a breeding bull who, if you want to crossbreed, is getting close to the perfect bull! Mainly because the udders are becoming much better!
