Woeste Polder Stormwind (Remco x Red Gold x Dani) is a bull who can definitely carry the popular term of ‘outcross’ (except within the MRIJ-population) given his pedigree. His sire (MRIJ), grand sire (Red Holstein) and great-grand sire (Brown Swiss) belong to a different breed. What they do share in common though is that all three have a big plus for protein- something which is also expected of Stormwind.

Remco, Stormwind’s sire, is a 100% MRIJ-bull with good numbers for cell count, fertility and durability. He also has a small plus for milk, in combination with extremely high percentages. His conformation inheritance trait is solid, with a couple of extreme exceptions within lower traits. Rear udder height and teat placement in a positive sense and referring to udder depth in a negative sense.

Stormwind’s maternal line, the Jana’s, is one of these extremes. Stormwind has a grand dam who has never had a lactation due to bad luck. On the other side, Stormwind’s dam belongs to one of the best cows in the barn. This Jana 10 (VG 87) has produced almost 70,000 kg milk with an average of more than 4% for protein. That she has passed this predisposition for high protein on to her offspring is clearly evident in her 3 daughters. These daughters of Red Glory, Lawrence and Versace all...
